PRESIDENT MAKES REQUEST

Prospects for Legislation Much Better Than at Former Session.

(By Associated Press.)

HAVANA, Nov. 7,-The winter session of Congress opened to-day promisingly. In his message, President Palma, discussclination to legislate, which characterized the summer session, the members of the minority party occupied their seats in full force. Nationalist leaders have informed the Associated Press that it is not their intention to pursue their former obstructive tactics.

There were less than half a dozen absences in each house, and the proceedings were characterized by friendliness. In his mesage, Prosident Palma, discussing the payments to the veterans, asked Congress to decide in what manner the remainder due should be raised. The President called attention to the fast that President called attention to the fact that the Platt amendment would not permit Cuba to heur debt unless the ordinary receipts of the treasury were sufficient to pay off the sinking fund, and the advantage as the present resources above the ordinary expenses are practically absorbed by the first loan. Cuba cannot greate a new loan except through increasing taxes. The President suggested that the difficulty might be obviated by the creation of a perpetual debt bearing interest at three per cent. per annum, which the government could be authorized to sink after twenty years or to liquidate sooner if the means became available.

NEW YORK, November 7.—Election eve finds both parties claiming the Empire State.
